Special religious meetings have been held in Berea beginning Saturday night and closing Tuesday night, and conducted by Rev. Lechlore and Mrs. Reeves, who have been missionaries in China and Thibet. They were considered by some as "Setters forth of strange doctrines," but the great blessing of the services has come from a deeper realization of the truths which all Christians believe. It is a good preacher who teaches us to desire to be better than we are, to ask God for larger blessings, and to sing from the heart:

Lord lift me up and make me stand,
By faith on heaven's little land,
On higher plane than I have found—
Lord, plant my feet on higher ground.

There is a modern store, constructed strictly on progressive plans, our clothing is sold on the smallest margin of profit, depending on a large volume of business. The more clothing we sell, the greater our purchasing power the lower our prices, that's the story in a nutshell.

Loyal to Berea and Pres. Frost.

The following resolutions were adopted at a very enthusiastic meeting held near the end of the winter term.

We, the mountain students of Berea College, at a mass meeting held March 7th, 1900, adopt the following resolutions:

1st. RESOLVED, that Pres. Wm. G. Frost, by his firm stand in support of the principles of the college, by his never waning interest in our welfare, by the untiring energy which he has shown in the great self sacrificing labor which he is doing for us, has proved himself to be our true and devoted friend.

2nd. RESOLVED, that we highly appreciate his earnest labors, thank him with profound sincerity, and give to him our hearty love and respect for his kind and unselfish devotion to the interest of the mountain people.

3d. RESOLVED, that we will earnestly endeavor to make the most of every opportunity that is given to us, prove ourselves loyal to the College, and in every way strive to make ourselves worthy of the labor, love, and confidence of its President.

4th. RESOLVED, that a copy of these resolutions be presented to President Frost as a token of our love and appreciation.

Unanimously adopted.
Jas. M. Combs Chairman.
Taylor P. Gambard, Sec.

Several letters and other testimonials from northern and colored students show that our President is appreciated as well by them as by the students from the mountains.

Married.

Our people enjoyed a pleasant surprise last week in the announcement of the marriage of Mr. Anverne Mann and Miss Loretta Burdette, which occurred last Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is well known to our people being the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burdette. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Mann, of Lindenville, Ohio. He has been attending school in Berea the past two terms, and has, by his pleasant and sociable manner, won many friends among the students, teachers, and citizens. A few intimate friends and relatives were present to witness the ceremony. President Frost, with brief and well chosen words officiated. The occasion was a happy and joyous one and all hoped that the entire life of the newly wedded couple would continue as full of happiness. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Quite a number of fine presents were received.

A Pair of Baby Shoes.

"No, I won't drink with you to-day, boys," said a drummer to several companions as they settled down in a smoking car and passed the bottle. "The fact is boys, I've quit drinking. I've sworn off."

"What's the matter with you, old boy?" sang out one. "If you've quit drinking something is up. What is it?"

"Well boys I will tell you. Yesterday I was in Chicago. Down on South Clark street a customer of mine keeps a pawnshop in connection with other business. I called on him, and while I was there a young man not more than twenty-five, wearing threadbare clothes and looking as hard as if he had not seen a sober day for a month, came in with a little package in hand. He unwrapped and handed the article to the pawnbroker, saying, 'Give me ten cents.'"

"And boys, what do you suppose it was? A pair of baby shoes—little things with the bottoms only a trifle soiled, as if they had been worn only once or twice. 'Where did you get these?' asked the pawnbroker. 'Got 'em at home,' replied the man, who had an intelligent face and the manner of a gentleman, despite his sad condition. 'My wife bought them for our baby. Give me ten cents for 'em—I want a drink.' 'You had better take the shoes back to your wife; the baby will need them,' said the pawnbroker. 'No, she won't, because she's dead. She's dead. She's lying at home now—died last night.' As he said this the poor fellow broke down, bowed his head on the show case and wept like a child. 'Boys,' continued the drummer, 'you may laugh if you please, but I have a baby at home, and I swear I'll never drink another drop.' —E.E.

BEREA, : : : KENTUCKY.

An American woman living in Manila writes that the two greatest deprivations that she and her American friends have to undergo are fresh fruit and sweet milk. There is no berry of any sort to be had and no small fruit. There are plenty of bananas, but they have no insipid taste.

The present population of the province of Timor, Port, is 5,000 souls, in sad contrast with its former prosperity, when 200 miles of canal on either bank of that river furnished occupation for sugar agriculturists alone. Vestiges of roads and aqueducts are found throughout the country.

Senator Harris, a member of the committee on privileges and elections, rarely speaks out in meeting. Days pass without a comment falling from the lips of the Kansas statesman. He is said to be even reticent among his close friends. Senator Harris was born in London county, Va., and was graduated at Columbian college.

The population of India is about four times that of the United States, while the latter has about double the area of the former. The bulk of the people are employed in agriculture. Each man rears, generally, but a few acres. There are, of course, occasional large plantations run by a rich man or Rajah, but they are exceptional.

Some curious secrets as to matrimony are seen in the following statistics: May and November are the most marrying months. Fewer people are married in March than in any other month. When bachelors marry widows the widow is generally the older, but when widowers marry maidens the maid is usually the younger.

Sunny Slope, Cal., enjoys the distinction of being the largest vineyard in the world. It is situated amid the most beautiful scenery of that favored land, two miles from San Gabriel. Of a total of 1,000 acres, 755 are devoted to grape vines, the remainder being distributed among orange trees (of which there are 12,000), lemon and olive trees.

The first electric launch to be used in the canals of Venice, Italy, has been delivered from England. The launch, which is called the Alessandro Volta, will accommodate fifty passengers. Its length is about fifty-six feet and width ten feet. It is equipped with a storage battery of 100 cells and will travel at a speed of about nine miles an hour.

In Berlin the police and lorries control many little things about which the police of American cities would not concern themselves once in a thousand years. Three courts decided recently that if the Berlin police judged any particular color scheme of a house to be improper or too gaudy or in bad taste, otherwise they could order the painter to change it.

No member of the house is more particular with his correspondence than Representative Bradley, of New York. He makes it a point to answer every letter the same day it is received. The letters he receives are carefully filed away. He believed in preserving all correspondence no matter how insignificant, for, as he says, it often happens that what may appear as a trifling note may at some time be of great value in more ways than one.

After nearly half a century of newspaper and literary work in this country Mrs. Jennie June Trolly will soon leave for England, the land of her birth, where she intends to pass the remaining years of her life. Mrs. Trolly began her newspaper work in New York in 1855, was one of the founders of Scribner in 1868, was twice elected president of that organization and in 1880 founded and became president of the women's press club.

Sir Isaac Pitman invented the "vegetarian bed," composed not of feathers, but of mosses, ferns, flowers and hay. This bedding material, commended as healthy and health-giving by many doctors and others, has become famous in vegetarian circles, and deserves to be more widely known. "It smells like ozone," is the testimony of more than one physician, and many say that sleeping upon it "gives rest to brain and mind."

Coal and wood will be superseded by electricity in the twentieth century kitchen. The electric oven bakes bread ideally, and meats prepared by it do not require watching or basting, while broiling or frying may be done in superior style. The electric chafing dish is attachable to an ordinary light wire; the current is turned on immediately the covers begin to stew or the eggs to fry. In the electric kitchen there will be no coal, no ashes, no smoke, no fuel, and not even a battery.

Not many authors have had a larger income from their books than the celebrated English author, John Ruskin. For the past thirteen years his copyrights brought him an average of $20,000 a year. They must continue a valuable property, though the earlier writings will, of course, be anybody's in seven years. A careful estimate shows that "Sesame and Lilies," after it would come "A Crown of Wild Olive," "The Seven Lamps of Architecture," and "Unto This Last."

MY FARMER LAD.

We may be poor in worldly goods,
My farmer lad, and I.
But I am one who loves none
That live beneath the sky.

I never sailed a foreign sea,
Nor trod an alien shore,
But who has soul to roam the whole
That is about his door?

The wind that ripples through the wheat,
The shadows in the brook,
The flight of birds, they all are words
In God's great spelling book.

And these are ours, to love and learn,
Although our farm is small;
The best things need no title deed,
The sunshine is for all.

Bestle our hearthstone dwells content;
No luxuries have we,
If I am glad to please my lad,
It is enough for me.

Two sturdy little folks are mine;
Who romp and laugh and grow;
One stops her play, to come and say:
"Mamma, I love you so!"

Thine father pauses, hoe in hand,
To watch his darlings, too,
Come, kiss me, lad, my heart is glad
While I love them and you.

Army Life in the Philippines

CHAPTER III.

A day had dawned on the Presidio Heights as brilliant as its predecessor had been dismal. A soft south wind had kept the fogs of the Pacific far out to sea and cleared the summer sky of every wisp of vapor. The sun of early August shone hot and strong upon the sandy wastes between the western limits of the division camps and the foamy strand beneath the low bluffs, and beat upon the canvas homes of the rejoicing soldiery, slacking cloth and canvas soiled by the rain and the summer sun.

Yet on this sunshiny summer morning, with hope and sunshine and confidence in his handsome, boyish face, Billy Gray came bounding up to the presence of the regimental commander as though that sun-visaged soldier were an indulgent uncle who could not say him nay. A stylish open carriage in which were two remarkably pretty girls and a gray-haired, venerable gentleman, had reined up in the street opposite the entrance to the row of officers' tents and Canker had ripped out his watch, with an ugly frown on his forehead, for three of his companions had just marched in from drill, and three of their young lieutenants, on the instant of dismissal, had more straight to the vehicle and he half-hopped to find they had topped off a minute or so of the allotted hour. The sound of merry laughter seemed to grate on his ears. The sight of Gray's beaming face seemed to deepen the gloom in his own. Instinctively he knew the youngster had come to ask a favor and he stood ready to refuse.

"Colonel, I'd like nightly to go over and see that review this morning, sir; and Mr. Prime is good enough to offer me a seat in his carriage. May I go, sir?"

"You can't go anywhere, sir, with the tents of your company in that disgraceful condition. Just look at them, sir! as ragged as a wash line on a windy day." And Canker scowled angrily at the young fellow standing squarely at attention before him.

"I know that, colonel, but the sun did that while we were out at drill, and the men will straighten everything in ten minutes. I'll give the order now, sir." And Billy looked as though refusal were out of the question.

"You'll stay and see it done, sir, and when it's done—to my satisfaction—will be time enough to ask for favors. Mr. Gordon, send word to the company commanders I wish to see them here at once," continued the senior officer, whirling on his heel and terminating the interview by so doing. It was in Gray's mind for a brief minute to follow and plead. He had made it tell many a time without obstinate universality, but he knew the carriage was waiting—the carriage load watching, and sleep down in his heart there was keen disappointment. He would have given a big slice of his monthly pay to go with that particular party and occupy the seat opposite Amy Lawrence and gaze his fill at her fair face. The well-known hated Squeers as he hurried away to his first sergeant and give the necessary orders before daring to return to the carriage and report his failure. His bright blue eyes were clouded and his face flushed with vexation, for he saw that the regiment was even now filing into the Presidio reservation near off to the north, and that no time was to be lost if his friends were to see the review. The distant measured boom of guns told that the general in whose honor the ceremony was ordered was already approaching the spot, and away over the rolling uplands toward the Golden Gate a cavalry escort rode into view. Billy ground his teeth. "Run and tell them I cannot get leave," he called to a fellow sub. "Squeers has set me to work straightening up camp. Turn out the company, sergeant! Brace the tents and align tents," and a mournful wail of his forage cap was the only greeting he dare trust himself to give, as after a few minutes of fruitless waiting, the vacant seat was given to another officer and the carriage rolled rapidly away. A second or two it was hidden from his sight behind the large wall tents along the line of fence, then shot into full view again as he stood at the end of the company street looking ling eagerly for its reappearance. And then occurred a little thing that was destined to live in his memory for many a day, and that thrilled him with a new and strange delight. He had never been of the so-called "spooney" set at the "Varsity. Pretty girls galore there were about that famous institute, and he had danced at many a student party and romped through many a reel, but the nearest he had ever come to something more than a jolly friendship for a girl was the regard in which he held his partner in the "mixed doubles," but that was all on account of her exuberant health, spirits, general comeliness of face and form, and exquisite skill in tennis. But this day a new and eager longing was eating at his heart; a strange, dull pang seemed to seize upon it as he noted in a flash that the seat that was to have been his was occupied by an officer many years his senior, a man he knew only by sight and an enviable reputation, a man whose soldierly, clean-cut face never turned an instant, for his eyes were fixed upon a lovely picture on the opposite seat Amy Lawrence bending eagerly forward and gazing with her beautiful eyes aghast with sympathy, interest and frank liking in search of the sorely disappointed young officer. "There he is!" he cried, though too far away for him to hear, and then, with no more thought of coquetry than a kitten, with no more motive in the world than that of conveying to him an idea of her sorrow, her sympathy, her perhaps pardonable and exaggerated indignation at what she deemed an act of tyranny on the part of his commander, with only an instant in which to convey it all—her sweet face flushed and her eyes flamed with the light of her girlish enthusiasm—in that instant she had kissed her hand to him, and then Ed. Armstrong, turning suddenly and sharply to see who could be the object of interest so absorbing caught one fitting glimpse of Billy Gray lifting his cap in quick acknowledgment, and the words that were on the tip of Armstrong's tongue the moment before were withheld for a more suspicious occasion—and it did not come too soon.

It was only four days after that initial meeting in the general's tent the forenoon of the girls' first visit to camp, but both in city and in the tented field there had been several occasions on which the colonel had been in conference with Mr. Prime and in company with the young ladies.

It thrilled him with a new and strange delight

Junior officers had monopolized the time and attention of the latter, but Armstrong was a close observer and a man who loved all that was strong, high-minded and true in his own sex, and that was pure and sweet and winsome in woman. A keen soldier he had spent many years in active service, most of them in the hardy, eventful and vigorous life on the Indian frontier. He had been conspicuous in more than one stirring campaign against the red warriors of the plains, had won his medal of honor before his first promotion, and his capture by a brave warrior during conduct in action long antedated the right to wear the double bars of that grade. He had seen much of the world, at home and abroad; had traveled much, read much, thought much, but these were things of less concern to him than the question as to whether he had ever loved much. Certain it was he had never married, but that didn't settle it. Many a man loves, said they, without getting married, forgetful of the other side of the proposition advanced by horrid regimental cynics, that many men marry without getting loved. Armstrong would not have proved an easy man to question on that, or indeed on any other subject which he considered personal to himself. Even in his own regiment in the regular service he had long been looked upon as an exclusive sort of fellow—a man who had no intimates and no many companions, yet, officers and soldiers, he held the respect and esteem of the entire command, even of those whom he kept at a distance, and few were the regiments in which there are not one or two characters who are not best seen and studied through a microscope. Without being sympathetic, said his critics, Armstrong was "square," but his critics had scant means of knowing whether he was sympathetic or not. He was a steadfast fellow, in unsweating, uncompromising sort of man, a man who would never have done for a diplomat, and could never have been elected to office. But he was truthful, just, and as the English officer reluctantly said of Lawson, whom he hated: "Yes—damn him he is brave." The men whom he did not seem to like in the army and who disliked him accordingly, were compelled to admit, to themselves at least, that their reasons were comprised in the above-recorded, regrettable, but unmistakable fact—he didn't like them. Another trait, unpopular was that he knew when and how to say no. He smoked too much, perhaps, and talked too little for those who would use his words as weapons against him. He never gambled, he never drank, he never lent nor borrowed. He was a bachelor, yet would never join a "mess," but kept house himself and usually had some favored comrade living with him. He was 36 and did not look 35. He was tall, erect, athletic, hardy and generous in build and his face was one of the best to be seen in many a line of officers at parade. His eyes were steel gray and clear and penetrating, his features clear-cut, almost too delicately put, though some of the best friends he had among the men. His hair was brown, sprinkled liberally with silver; his mouth, an admirable mouth in every way, was shaded and half-hidden by a large, drooping mustache to which, some men thought and some women said, his tapering white fingers paid too much attention, but I doubt if a knowledge of this criticism would have led to the faintest alteration in the habit. Generally the expression of Armstrong's face was grave, and, on duty a little stern; and not ten people in the world were aware what humor could twinkle in the clear, keen eyes, or twitch about the corners of that mobile mouth. There were no five who knew the tenderness that lay in hiding there, for Armstrong had few living kindred and they were men. There lived not, as he drove this glorious August morning to the breezy upland beyond the camps, one woman who could say she had seen those eyes of Armstrong's melt and glow with love. As for Amy Lawrence, she was not dreaming of such a thing. She was not even looking at him. Her thoughts at the moment were drifting back to that usually light-hearted boy who stood gazing so disconsolately after them as they drove away, his eyes were intent upon an apparition long gone, that presently reclaimed her wandering thoughts.

Turning up Point Lobos avenue strode a party of four—soldiers. One of those, well-dressed, dapper, dandy, his looking down, his eyes fastened on him, walked between two women, guards. The fourth, a sergeant, followed at their heels. Miss Lawrence had just time to note that the commandant was dark and oval and refined, when it was suddenly uplifted at sound of the whirling carriage wheels. A light of recognition, a most of terror, flashed across it, and with one bound the prisoner sprang toward between his guards, dove almost under the covers of the startled team, and curled through the wide open doorway of a certain room. He was out of sight in a second.

Puzzling Orders.

A chemist is making a collection of the queer cures he receives from people who send children to the doctor for things they need. Here are a few samples of them: "This child is my little girl. I sent you a penny to buy tooth loss powder, but a grocer up ahead who is sick." Another reads: "Dear doctor, my girl better pommies, worse of Ambie Loxan for to parble baby's throat and edelidge." An anxious mother writes: "You will please give the little boy a piece of worth of opiate for to throw up a five months old baby. N. B. The babe has a sore stomach." This one puzzled the druggist: "I have a one penny in my child's diagram. Please give my son something to release it." Another anxious mother writes: "My little baby has cut up its father's parish plaster. Send an anodyne quick as possible by the enclosed little girl." The writer of this one was evidently in pain. "I had a hot time in my head, and with I would like it to be besides. What is good for to extinguish it? The enclosed expense is for the price of the extinguisher. Hurry, please."—Pearson's Weekly.

The First Field Seen.

A captain in a regiment stationed in Natal when paying his company the other day happened to give a man, a Tennessee half-breed, which, as one would naturally expect, bears the image and superscription of President Kruger. The man brought it back to the pay table and said to the captain: "Please, sir, you've given me a half-breed." The officer took the coin without looking at it, rang it on the table and then remarked: "It sounds all right, blaster. What's wrong with it?" "You look at it, sir," was the reply. The captain glanced at the coin, saying: "It's all right, man. It will pass in the cafternoon." This apparently satisfied Blaster, who walked off making the remark: "If you say it's all right, or it's all right; but it's the first time I've seen the queen with whiskers!"—London Answers.

A Woman's Tear.

The tears of lovely woman had been a mystery through the ages, but James Smithson, the founder of the Smithsonian Institution, determined that the secret should be a secret no longer. One day he saw a tear slipping down a lady's cheek and instantly sought to catch it in a small vial which he carried constantly with him. The half the precious drop escaped, but, having preserved the other half, Mr. Smithson submitted it to reagents, and next day published to the world the fact that it was simply microscopic salt, with minute substances held in solution.—Youth's Companion.

Where the Trouble Lay.

"Do you think you can clear him?" asked the devoted wife of the lawyer. "I hope so, ma'am," replied the lawyer, "but I'm afraid—"

"Why, he has lived here all his life," she interrupted, "and knows every one."

"Yes, and every one knows him," rejoined the lawyer. "That's what troubles me."—Chicago Daily News.

Gilson—Next time I take a good French restaurant I won't be so hard on it. I don't care a damn whether she leaves I take French in no sleep and take a French newspaper, or whether she thinks I don't know a French word in a million.

Wants—What's the matter now?

Heard—Last night I got a fright down the card and peek out something every couple of inches I'd strike it about right. If there's one thing I can't eat it is a few feet. And, the last night we got was with a bit of egg in it. And, a lot of it.

Well, you didn't have to eat it.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson in the International Series for March 18, 1906—John and Matthew's House.

(Prepared by Hector D. Lexington)
TEXT, LESSON TEXT.
(MARK 13:22)

13 And he went forth again by the sea side, and a multitude resorted unto him, and he taught them.

14 And as he passed by, he saw Levi the son of Alphaeus sitting at the receipt of custom, and said unto him: Follow me. And he arose and followed him.

15 And it came to pass, that as Jesus sat in his house, many publicans and sinners sat also together with him and his disciples, for there were many, and they followed him.

16 And when the scribes and Pharisees saw him with the publicans and sinners, they said unto him: How can he thus eat and drink with publicans and sinners?

17 When Jesus heard it, he said unto them: They that are whole have no need of a physician, but they that are sick. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners.

18 And the disciples of John and of the Pharisees came to him, and said: Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but thine eat and drink?

19 And Jesus said unto them: Can the children of the bridegroom fast? For as long as the bridegroom is with them, they cannot fast.

20 But the days will come, when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

21 No man putteth a new patch on an old garment, for that which is new shall take away from the old, and the rent shall be worse.

22 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles, for the new wine will burst the bottles, and the wine will be spilled, and the bottles shall be made of naught.

23 But new wine must be put into new bottles.

24 And Jesus said unto them: I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Therefore will I say unto you, and ye shall not understand.

25 But when the Son of Man shall be seated on his throne, ye shall see these things, and ye shall understand.

26 And he said unto them: But of that day and hour no man knoweth, neither the Son, nor the Father, but only the Father who is in heaven.

27 And he said unto them: Beware lest your hearts be weighed down with surfeiting and drunkenness and care, and that day come upon you unawares.

28 For as it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

29 For as they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not that the flood came, and took them all away, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

30 For as it was in the days of Lot, when he was telling of the wickedness of the cities of the plain, and he was laughed at, and they said unto him: He is mad, or he is in his senses? So shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

31 For as they were eating and drinking, and saying, Peace, peace, shall come upon them, and shall take them, and destroy them, even as it was in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah, when they were boasting, saying: We are strong, because we have peace and quietness.

32 For as it was in the days of the tower of Babel, when they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

33 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

34 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

35 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

36 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

37 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

38 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

39 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

40 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

41 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

42 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

43 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

44 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

45 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

46 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

47 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

48 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

50 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

59 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

60 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

61 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

62 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

63 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

64 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

65 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

68 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

69 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

70 For as they were building, and said: We will build a tower, and a city, and a name, that we may not be dispersed, so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man.

Our Increase of Insanity.

Much attention has been aroused lately by the alarming increase of insanity. Our high rate of living is the cause assigned. In the rush for money, both men and women neglect their bodies until the breakdown comes. The best way to preserve health is by a faithful use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. By curing all stomach ills, this remedy prevents nervous breakdowns. It is also an excellent medicine for constipation, dyspepsia and indigestion.

When some women get the blues the remedy is to get out of the house and go to bed.

When the truth is told, all our good resolutions last longer than we thought they would.

Primitive Emotion.

Marie Ross, aged eight years, was telling the story of the making of the world.

And Adam was the first being created," she announced, solemnly. "So it was, actually, for him, and one day, when he was asleep, the Lord took a rib out of his side and made a woman out of it. Adam would have a woman to play with him."

"And wasn't Adam afraid?" asked Eve.

"Suppose? Why he was just stuck to the ground and didn't move, and he said, 'S. V. Communion. Avert it!'"

POSTED ON FINANCE.

At Least That Was the Impression She Gave Her Sister Club Members.

"It is simply impossible to keep posted on everything," said a club woman to a daughter of the American Revolution.

"But sometimes, if you are not quite posted, you can wrangle out of a difficult situation without seeming so very ignorant. For example, I was just saved by my presence of mind at a D. A. R. meeting the other day."

The Close of the Term.

Berea College closed, perhaps, the most successful term in its history by a public exhibition on Wednesday night, March 7th. The exercises were in charge of Prof. L. V. Dodge and the "B" Rhetorical Class.

The music was an interesting feature and to be commended for its variety as well as its excellence. The "A" Choral Class and the two Glee Clubs were greatly enjoyed, while the closing duet by Prof. and Mrs. Lodwick was a piece of rare excellence. The exercises throughout were of unusual merit, showing thought and being delivered in a natural and earnest manner.

W. D. Melvaine, of Oak Park, Ill., spoke earnestly on "The Responsibility of Young Americans."

Helen M. Hankins, of Pawnee City, Neb., read a graceful essay on "The Influence of Music."

Mary E. Merritt, of Berea, read a thoughtful piece on "What Woman Owes to Christianity."

Marion Frederick, of Ogle, Ky., gave an original poem entitled "Squalor on Squabble Creek," which was thoroughly appreciated by the audience.

Charles Burdette, of Berea, spoke on "Kentucky Politics." It was his first appearance before so large an audience and he acquitted himself well.

The essay by Grace Lester on "The United States" was something original. Miss Lester was dressed to represent a Chinese lady and spoke as a foreigner might speak of the United States, referring especially to lynchings, strikes, and other disorders which would attract the attention of an outsider.

Harold H. Johnson, of New York City, gave a vivid description of the scene which he witnessed on the reception of Admiral Dewey.

Frances Berry, of Rockhold, Ky., presented her thoughts on "Woman's Position and Work." She repeated some things which have often been said in favor of woman's voting, but the strength and beauty of her essay was expended upon the work which woman alone can do in the home and school.

James E. Ewers, of Fredericktown, O., and James M. Racer, of Xenia, O., gave orations on kindred subjects, showing the two sides of the same topic, Mr. Ewers' title being "A Creature of Circumstances," and Mr. Racer's "A Creator of Circumstances." Both orations were marked by genuine and vigorous thought.

Miss Ellen M. Click, of Mulberry Gap, Tenn., read an original story called "Jim's Return," which was out of the ordinary line of school exercises and showed real literary skill.

The last oration, on Wm. E. Gladstone, was given by Raymond Earl Paddock, of Superior, Wis. Overcoming a little difficulty at the beginning, Mr. Paddock spoke with force and earnestness.

The audience was crowded and enthusiastic. Many were standing during the entire program and yet they were willing to stand longer and endure the music. In fact we think they would have endured some of the literary exercises if they had supposed the speakers were prepared to give another round!

At the close President Frost made a few appreciative remarks on the merit of the exercises, saying that the young people who did well in such things would do well in all their other undertakings. He also spoke of his anticipation of the time when he could live in Berea and be a companion of the students.

Such an exercise sent the great audience home with pleasant and inspiring thoughts, and the reports of it will bring cheer to many distant homes from which our students come. So ends the Winter Term, and a new term begins to-day. The CITIZEN has a hearty word of congratulation to the young people who are marching on through education to honor and usefulness, and a sigh of regret for any young men or young women who do not join the procession.

Just Before Bedtime.

By ELEANOR HOBBS

There is no family which includes children within its circle to which this problem does not occur—what to do with the hour which intervenes between supper and the children's bed hour. Below will be found a suggestion for amusements, which have given rise to many an hour of hearty fun and laughter in one home circle.

A PENNY FOR YOUR THOUGHTS.

The players are provided with pencils and paper, and the leader, after telling the limit of time allowed—usually ten minutes—announces a word which each proceeds to inscribe at the top of their paper as a starting point. Then, in perfect silence, each writes down in a column under this word a series of others suggested by the first, and the third by the second, and so on, thus following out a definite train of thought. At the end of the allotted time the papers are handed in to the leader, who reads them aloud, and much merriment is the result, particularly if guesses as to the authorship be requested.

THE SCHOOL.

Edited by MRS. EDELL H. YOUNG, teacher in the Normal Department, Berea College.

"There is a blue bird" spring has come! and sure enough on the highest top of the great button-bull tree opposite the house sat the little blue angel singing with all his might, a living sapphire dropped down from the walls of the city above."

When these spring days come our whole nature responds in a way that seems to say that spring is the one thing for which the world was made, the natural order of things forever.

How the sunshine weds us to new life, to fresh growth; to repeat the miracle, renewed every year, of beauty springing out of apparent darkness, and coldness, and deadness.

The birds sing their gladness from unconstrained throats. We are too reticent to say or sing the best things that we feel, but we cannot fail somehow to express the joy of living if it has really taken root in the soil of our hearts, any more than the flower-bud can be content with a mass of roots and no leaves or blossoms.

Everything is upward striving. "This is my way for the heart to be true. As for grace to be green or skies to be blue. 'Tis the natural way of living!"

Some one says that "A man never knows himself until he tries to do hard things," and in a vital sense this is true, but we must live with our "selves" many years and pass through many experiences before we know the person whom we call self. But certainly some of the finest relatives of our inner being come to us in our sympathetic touch with the spirit that fills these spring days. We learn then anew that we do love light, and not darkness, that we are in harmony with life and not death, that we long for purity through and through; that we must grow better, or else we cannot stay even as good as we are.

To each one of us, doubtless, spring brings its own message, but be sure that we cannot afford to miss any of the gladness and inspiration that can come to us out of it, by shutting ourselves away with any grief or disappointment, or bitterness, nor by letting the urgent daily care shut the windows of our souls to the light and air and sweetness of sunshine that waits to come in.

Then a very common window shutter is labeled "I never noticed!" Let us try taking that down this spring. The cob-webs are thick over the window. Take the shutter off; we shall not want it any more. We can never be content with the dark after the world of color, and fragrance, and sound have come to us. We did not know how much we were missing. Henceforth we will live more in sympathy with child life and bird life and plant life and be more at home in the realm of beauty which at its roots is goodness, and so we shall know ourselves part of the great kingdom of God whose blue canopy is over us and whose love and law fill all things.

THE FARM.

Edited by S. C. MASON, Professor of Horticulture, Berea College.

What for the Coming Year?

The opening of another season is near at hand. What have you planned for it? As you think over the past years has your farming been all you would like the next year's to be, or are there places where you can see room for improvement? Are your plans made for the season's work or do you leave that till the time comes? Have a plan by all means. You may fail in some of the things you plan, but still you will have a better grip on your work for having made the plans and will be better able to carry out all you plan for in the years to follow. Have you got the fences all in shape and how about the way the fields are laid out? Are things handy or does it take about twice as much time to get to some of your ground as it ought to? Would moving a few panels of fence and changing a gate save lots of time when the busy season sets in? How about that old gate that was off the hinges or crippled last year, which you have not got around to mend yet? You have "got sort of used to it" by this time and it does not seem so bad, but now do not go through this season still dragging that old gate around by main force. Fix it up and see if there will not be several other things crying out to be fixed too. Maybe there is a place where you have been throwing down a couple of lengths of rails to get in and out for a year past. How many times would you have to do that when you are in a hurry, to kill time enough to build a gate there?

Now a word about the fields. Those that have been run in corn till they are getting worn should have a rest by being sown to cow peas or set in grass or clover. Those gullies that are beginning to appear should be stopped promptly by little brush and stone dams before they cut so deeply that your field is ruined. Clear those briars out along the fence row and in the corners and make use of what land there is in your field while you go through the motions of farming.

What about next year's crop of calves and pigs? It will cost you a little more to raise a lot of young animals from pure bred sires than from scrub stock, but it will pay. These will be half-breeds. Breed such to pure sires again and you have a herd of three-quarter bred animals. Now you can begin to talk about your high grades and when the stock-trader comes around the better price that two or three such will bring will keep one of the boys in Berea all winter. Such things never come to a man who does not make plans for them though. What are your plans?
